INSTRUCTIONAL GOALS

The primary function of a school program is the instruction of students. All staff activities and efforts shall be directed toward providing a high quality, effective, and ever-improving instructional program. Instruction should be focused on educational appropriateness and shall not be constrained by state-mandated tests.

There are primarily three functions involved in carrying out the instructional program, Curriculum Operation, Coordination and Evaluation.

The operating function involves classroom instruction and building program management. The coordinating and developing function includes monitoring activities (curriculum development), in-service education, and special services. The evaluation function involves data collection and synthesis and establishing future direction.
